All interested students, postdocs, researchers and faculty are invited to attend the 2016 JPL Research Poster Conference.

There will be over 200 posters on display.

The conference supports the Laboratory's Independent Research and Technology Development (IR&TD) Program, consisting of both the Research and Technology Development (R&TD) Program and the Strategic University Research Partnerships (SURP) Program.

This is your opportunity to meet with colleagues, in many disciplines, within science and technology, conducting research strategically important to JPL/Caltech and NASA.

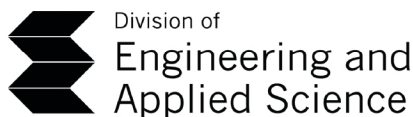

The posters will be available from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. You will also be able to chat with the individual science and technology researchers, who will be present at their posters, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

This is an excellent opportunity to see first-hand the latest results from the programs, and to learn more about the investment opportunities available at JPL.
